Toronto suffers a shortage of hospice-palliative care beds and services.

Hospitals represent the largest piece of healthcare spending. Provincial healthcare budgets are stretched to a point where it is unrealistic to expect government to find more dollars to create solutions.

Our Over 65 population out-spends all other groups for healthcare spending.

Population of Canadians over 65	13.2%
Healthcare spending for Canadians over 65	44.6%

We can and must provide better care through more effective usage of government dollars.

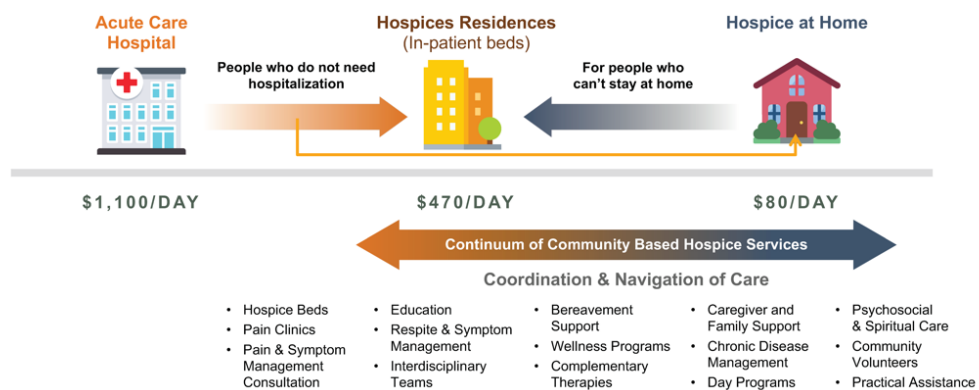

While we have a healthcare system that has many merits, it can use improvement.

Hospice palliative care is a solution that provides:

- Better care at the end of life with both residential and visiting hospice.
- Significant savings to the healthcare system, enabling us to get more care without increased taxes.

Government cannot solve the problem alone. It does not have the money and taxpayers will not accept more taxation.

How Hospices Help End Hallway Medicine

Your support for Hospice will make a difference !

Over 25 years, 10 hospice beds saves the Province over $50 Million.

Every dollar you donate now will save over $3 in hospice occupancy expenses.
